STANFORD RURAL ROUTE NO. 5 PUT IN OPERATION

West End Points-Contest Over Carrier's Place

Stauford has one more rural route since the first of the year as a result of a postoffice department order, which went nto effect the first of the year. It will be known as Rural Route No. 5, out of Stanford, and is merely a reversal of the old route which originated at Moreland, Moreland via Hustonville. The route now starts at Stanford goes to Hasthence to Moreland and Milledgeville and back to Stanford, covering a distance of about 25 or 26 miles, and distributing to a large ters to us begging us to continue as patronage.

Considerabe objection has been raised to the change in the ronte by residents along the Moreland and Milledgeville pike, who have previousearly in the morning as the earrier several days last week. of the Hustonville pike, who will be Female College last Tuesday to re- and then go to the opera house next served much earlier than before, and some her studies. the new route will also afford quickand the metropolis of the West End.

An interesting contest has arisen over the position of carrier on this ronte. The position will pay $100 a month after the first of July, and quite a number of applicants are after it. Mr. C. K. It has been our custom always at the close of each season to make Special Low Prices on certain articles and we always make the Prices low enough to justify your buying and putting away for another season. This time we are making this Special Price early so you can wear the goods now and get the benefit of them this cold weather. Kersey Suits. You know they are very heavy and warmest of all clothes. Absolutely all wool. Sold the nation over at $10. We have just about a dozen suits left and the price will be $6.85 for Coat, Vest and Trousers.

Overcoats. We are going to make the price so you will buy if you expect to live this winter and next to wear them. We have too many to name all prices here, but they will range in men's coats from $3.50 to $17.50, and take our word for it, they are cheap.

That any case of nasal catarrh can be cured by an internal medicine is denied by some. Only a glance at our files would be necessary to convince any sane person that catarrh can be cured by the internal use of Peruna

Mrs. Victoria Pickel, of Columbus, is a case of this sort. She had nasal catarrh very badly, and was cured by Peruna. We will let her tell her own story. Mrs. Victoria M. Pickel, 130 E. Mound Street, Columbus, Ohio, writes:

"I have been using Peruna for catarrh, having had a very aggravated case, so bad that it clogged the nasal organs. When I did get the nasal organs opened, the mucus would drop into my throat and make me very sick. "A friend advised me to take Peruna, and after using four bottles I was cured. I have no trouble now, and am happy to say that I am enjoying the best of health and attending to my lodge duties, being a member of the Rebecca Lodge of Odd Fellows.

"I would recommend Peruna to those suffering with the same

To Our Friends and Others Who Grow Tobacco:

The time for hot air misrepresentations and extravagant talk is over. This line of argumen't might have fooled a few people who have tobaceo to sell but it don't last. We are now at a point where the grower or the man selling tobacco says to such people, "You'll have to show me." This is where we come in. This is all we want, all we ever want, a square deal. Simply compare our sales with those of any house anywhere, large or small... We court this kind of competition. "Well," says the hot air artist, "what else have you to say?" Just wait a minute and you'll find ont. February 2, 1914, (last season) this house sent out a letter reviewing our market. You must remember we led it in pounds sold and prices obtained, doing so we also led any market in Kentucky with a higher general average. We then called attntion to the fact that we had sold four crop lots a a very high price as follows: Smith & Agee 2500 pounds, at an average of near ly 20e; Palmer & Lear, 2475 pounds, average 16 1-2e; Lee & Doolin, 4300 pounds, average 16c: Deatherage & King, 2500 pounds, average $15.75.

Now let us give the best sales in the 12 days we have been open this season. Million and Masters, Valley View, 2240 pounds, average $13.15; M. B. Baker, Garrard County, 1660 pounds, average $13.00; Warner & Jones, Red House, 1790 pounds, average $15.00; Luther Kimberlain, Dreyfus, 1380 pounds, erop, average $13.80; Tudor & Long, Newby, 1875 pounds crop average $13.50: S. T. Hoover, Lanc ister, R. R. crop lot 1035 pounds, average $17.01 hundred: while the lot of Schooler & Curtis, Richmond, R. R. sold at the following prices; 270 pounds at $25.00 per hundred, 240 pounds at $'0.00, 210 pounds at $25,00, 221 pounds at $14.75, 165 pounds at $18.00, 210 pounds at $17.00, 345 pounds at $15.00, 235 pounds at $18.75. General average $20.00. There are many others we could name just as good.

These sales will qui kly stop wildcat talk... They are not imaginary sales; write to them, or better still, telephone them. They will speak for themselves. We want to say that our house has built its reputation on telling the truth. We know no other way to do business successfully. By doing this we have established one of the best markets in the country. We still lead in prices obtainer and pounds sold. Let the fellows who talk about our market read the price we gonte to them and weep. We can's help it. The farmer had the tobacco, we had the place to show it and the buyers to bid on it. This is all there is to it.

wish you the hap-piest kind of Xmas and to remember that we have just a little better prices than the other fellows have gotten. Market stronger each day, and this we expect to see continue from day to day. We expect you with us luesday, January 25, when we open for business after the Holidays. Everything that modern ideas could suggest we have in our big steel We thank von for m aking it possible for us to stay in the lead in prices and pounds. Vary sincerely, Very Sincerely, warehouse. MADISON TOBACCO WAREHOUSE COMPANY, Inc.

CHAPTER I.

The Mystery of the Spotted Collar. N the side of a rugged monntain a black reivet bole yawned. Rubble lay strewn all about the ledges. To a layman this rubble would have explained nothing: to a miner it would instantly have explained the nature of the hole. Presently a burly man emerged from the hole, squinting. He eyed the lump of quartz in his hand-always a little, but never quite enough gold to make it worth while. The prospector flung the quartz savagely upon the accumulating rubble and leaned disheartenedly against the log support to the entrance of the mine. His grubstake was fast dwindling, and in another four days he would have to blke some thirty-two miles to the nearest town for supplies.

Done! He had paid $500, every one of them earned at the risk of his neck, for this damnable hole in the ground. He filled and lit his plpe and fell to dreaming what he would do when he struck it rich. By and by the dreams faded and the bitter realities returned. He rose lamely and carefully picked his way down to the Irishman's shanty. The two of them shared their noon meals on pleasant days. "How's she comin'?" "Same old story," answered Trainor, erstwhlle strong man of the Eclipse

In Trainor's life there had been but trifling monotonies. He had been a sallor in the south seas, a jumberjack in the north, a cowpuncher, a fireman on a north Atlantic liner. He had come from a poor but respectable Ohlo family. His father nor his grandfather had ever stepped over the state boundary lines. But in him there was a reversion to the type of pioneer who had established the Trainor family when Ohio was a wilderness. He could not settle down; he must be on the move continually, and when at length he joined the circus he found came through the flap which separated that roaming, nncertain life much to the women's dressing tent from the his fancy. There he had met Mimi men's, She looked a bit tired and care Keene, known on the handbills (for worn. But the constant recurrence day the lust to wander died in the family had come from good stock, but of an evil desire gradually lessens the man's heart, and he wanted a roof had fallen in evil days. She ran ln over his head, children about his knee and money in his purse. When the opportunity to go hunting for gold came he hesitated not an instant.

He had been hammering away at the grim, unyielding rocks for eight months, making only such trips to town as were necessary for food. Perhaps the rubble extracted represented a thousand dollars, perhaps less. He

One day he staggered out into the brilliant sunshine. A lump of quartz had always talked of Mimi, Mimi, was clutched tightly in his hand. When he grew accustomed to the dazzling light he turned the stone over and over, his heart beating as it had never beaten before. There were veins in it-broad flakes of it-gold, gold.

"Donovan!" he cried. The old Irish prospector came ont of his hole, blinking.

"I've got it! I've got it!" Donovan snatched the quartz from the hand of his friend.

"Holy Virglu! Ye've struck it! If it's all like that ye're a rich man. Man, man, there's a hundred dollars in that lump alone!" Trainor collapsed on a pile of worthless rubble and laid his head on his arms. He had done it all in these few months. He was rich, rich! And all his dreams were going to come true! The Irishman gazed down at him ruefully, but philosophically.

"An' me that's been prospectin' twenty years an' ain't blt my plle yet! Well, God bless ye, man. I'm glad ye got it. An' now let's go take a look." Like all men who suddenly stumble upon a virgin fortune, Trainor instantly began to plan how to protect it. He had some bank attorneys draw up papers leaving the mine to his wife, in case of her death to his child, to her husband. It was subtly understood that the brother-in-law, Keene, should never be able to touch it. These western bank attorneys were simple and bonest men. Before he had time to write to his wife Trainor was killed by a premature explosion. He was buried under the rubble his own hands had torn from the mountain's side, and the kindby Donovan started out to and the

The child grew. Her education began. She gave promise of great beauty, even in the lank and gawky age. Hassam All had begun to love gold, the bright, shining metal-not in the abstract, but in the concrete. To touch it with his fingers was transport.
